A decade or so ago a little girl nicknamed Little Red, for her love of the color red went to her grandmother's house.

She went to give her dear grandmother a basket full of goodies to make her feel better.

But a sly wolf had plans to eat Little Red and her grandmother and snuck into her home and tied her up.

However, do not fear as Little Red and her grandmother were saved by a woodsman and Little Red grew up to become a mother of her own...

She had a daughter who also liked the color red, and she grew up and had a little boy named Johnny Blue. Named as such for his love of the color blue.

One-day, Jonny Blue's mother asked, "Johnny Blue, please take your grandfather's briefcase back to him. He left it here last night and will need it tonight for work."

So Little Johnny Blue grabbed the briefcase and set off on his way to his grandparents' house. On the way, he stopped at an orange tree to eat an orange.

No one had seen the Big Bad Wolf in years. But as Little Johnny Blue ate his orange a large sly cat named Meanie the Panther was watching him.

Meanie the Panther sniffed the air with his nose and smelt that old man he saw yesterday. Meanie grind a wide grin and said in a hushed voice, "I know where you are going and when you get there I'll have a surprise waiting for you."

Meanie the Panther ran to Little Johnny Blue's grandparents' home. "Where the Big Bad Wolf failed I will not because cats are smarter than wolves or dogs," said Meanie.

When Little Johnny Blue's grandfather turned out the lights Meanie the Panther made his move.

Meanie the Panther sniffed the air and smelt Little Red, but couldn't find her anywhere in the house. "Perfect," said Meanie. "This will make it easier now."

"Who are you?" shouted Little Johnny Blue's grandfather. Meanie sneered at him and said, "I am the one who will succeed where the Big Bad Wolf failed!" Meanie then tied him up and stuffed him in the closet.

After locking the old man in the closet Meanie went and got ready for Little Johnny Blues arrival.

He put on Little Johnny Blue's Grandfather's night cap and pajamas and then climbed into bed and waited for Little Johnny Blue.

An hour later Little Johnny Blue arrived and knocked on the door. Meanie the Panther called out in a low voice, "Who is there?" "It is I Little Johnny Blue, and I'm here to give you your briefcase grandpapa. Are you sick you sound terrible?"

"I am feeling a little sick," said Meanie. "But please do come in if I start to feel better I will need my briefcase for work tonight."

"Wow," said Little Johnny Blue. "What big sharp claws you have." Meanie grinned and said, "All the better to scratch your back when you have a little itch my son."

"Awesome," shouted Little Johnny Blue. "What sharp teeth you have." "All the better not to eat you my son." Meanie was proud of himself as this is where the Big Bad Wolf had messed up.

"Hmmm," exclaimed Little Johnny Blue. "What an odd-looking ear grandpapa." Meanie laughed and said, "All the better to make me unique in this world my son."

"Cool," said Little Johnny Blue. "What soft smooth fur you have..." Meanie hugged himself and said, "A coat to keep me warm well I sleep my son."

"Grandpapa," asked Little Johnny Blue. "Are you the Big Bad Wolf in disguise?" Meanie the Panther smiled at him.

"Why of course not," Meanie exclaimed. "I Meanie the Panther am not as dumb as that so-called wolf."

Little Johnny Blue screamed and ran for the front door as Meanie the Panther leaped from the bed. "You ruined my plan," hissed Meanie. "So I guess I'll just eat you, and your grandpapa and Little Red will have to wait."

But before Meanie could reach Little Johnny Blue, his mother rushed through the door with a big huge bucket of water. Meanie the Panther was so scared at the thought of being wet he fainted.

"Where are you grandpapa," shouted Little Johnny Blue. Both Little Johnny Blue and his mother heard sounds coming from the closet.

Little Johnny Blue's mother opened the closet door and untied her father.

Jimmy the ax-man showed up and hauled Meanie the Panther away. As they left Little Johnny Blue, his mother, and Grandpapa saw Little Red coming down the path with a picnic basket.
